

Making sure a child's first home is in the safety of their mother's arms.

The Together Program is an innovative three-year pilot, developed in response to the growing number of babies being born into homelessness. It is a sobering reality that many pregnant women experiencing homelessness, actively hide their situation due to the fear of child removal and other co-occurring complexities and trauma such as mental health challenges, family and domestic violence, and experiencing addiction. This often leads to insufficient prenatal care, minimised birth planning, and lack of much needed support.

The Together Program seeks to bring the needs of these women and their newborns, and the challenges they face because they lack a safe and secure home, into the spotlight. The Together Program provides tailored comprehensive wrap-around supports during the crucial first 1,000 days of a child's life from conception (where possible), including stable housing, medical care, and individualised support. The program aims to enhance maternal and child well-being, parenting skills, and the mother-child relationship, while also reducing the need for child protection intervention and improved overall quality of life.
